Canadians Off In Big Push

PARIS, Feb. 9 (AP)—The powerful new Canadian First Army offensive penetrated at least four and a half miles into Germany and well into the Siegfried line today, forming the northern jaw of an Allied pincer drive against the Ruhr.

YANKS DRIVING LAST JAPS OUT OF MANILA

By Associated Press

American divisions are squeezing the last Japanese out of Manila and putting finishing touches to their campaign on the central Luzon plain.

The 37th Division ferried across the Pasig river at the edge of the smoldering Philippines capital near the Malacan palace, reported was in flames. Gen. MacArthur said they "are assisting the 11th Air-borne Division in clearing South Manila" where Tokyo admitted only suicide squads remained.

Seventy-five miles to the north, the 6th and 25th Divisions captured Munoz, Rizal and Lupao in heavy fighting, completing conquest of the central Luzon plains. Solitary B-29s carrying the war to Japan hit Kobe in the sixth consecutive day of raids, while a "snooperport" reconnoitered the Tokyo-Yokohama area.

Four more small Japanese ships were reported sunk and two damaged.

Two Island, in the Volcano group, was bombed for the 63rd consecutive day by three big fires started in Okinawa town on Haha Island in the Bonins, keeping things hot on the southern approaches to Japan.

In central Burma three British and Indian columns beat off Japanese counterattacks while amassing men and armament along 100 miles of the Irrawaddy river for an all-out assault on Mandalay.

Manila is suffering from an acute food shortage, which will be relieved until the Japanese have been hopped up. Hungry crowds looted damaged buildings and mobbed Filipinos who tried to carry sacks of rice down the street. Water supply was assured by the Yanks who said Japanese had prepared to dynamite the main reservoir but never touched off the explosives.

Fighter planes of the U. S. 14th Air Force destroyed 25 enemy locomotives, damaged five others and knocked out a number of railway bridges in attacks upon Japanese communications north, south and east of Changsha. Two planes were lost and two enemy aircraft downed.

Nazis in Italy Counter Attack

ROME, Feb. 9 (AP)—The Germans have launched a counterattack in company strength against positions newly regained by the Fifth Army in the Sorchio valley north of Galliano. Allied headquarters announced today.

The enemy attack began a few hundred yards north of the village of Burca and the official report said fighting still was in progress.

Brisk clashes were reported in other Fifth Army sectors, but on the whole there was no large scale action on the front.

On the west coast Allied patrols drove forward to positions as much as 300 yards ahead of the lines despite light opposition, including mortar fire.

WESTERN FRONT—The Canadian Army stuck southeast of Nijmegen, Holland, in a grand-scale offensive to turn the Westwall's northern flank and break into the Ruhr and Rhine-land while elements of the U. S. Third Armies captured Schmidt and pushed closer to Pruem.

RAF in Mighty Blow at Politz

LONDON, Feb. 9 (AP)—RAF heavy bombers, sweeping over Germany in great strength, blasted a synthetic oil refinery at Politz last night while formations of Mosquitos struck at Berlin, the Air Ministry announced today.

The announcement indicated that more than 1000 planes participated in operations.

Politz is situated in Pomerania, about 10 miles north of the Baltic port of Stettin, now menaced by the on-rushing Red army.

Stockholm had reported a steady procession of unidentified planes over southern Sweden between 7:30 and 10 o'clock last night.

indicating that the Allied air offensive was being continued by daylight, the German radio said today that big bomber formations were heading toward western Germany.

Hungry Child at Manila Saves Candy for Ill Dad

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 9—She is a little girl at the Santo Tomas internment camp in Manila.

For months under the stern rule of the Japanese army, food for the camp was inadequate. Then the liberating tanks came and with them good rations.

Someone gave the little girl a bar of candy. Promptly she put it in a bucket.

Burning Kleve, northern terminal of the Siegfried line, was imminently menaced. The new attack front widened to seven miles. Formidable forest defenses in the Reichswald, considerably weakened by a terrific artillery and air bombardment, were being mopped up swiftly. Five German and two Dutch towns fell. More than 1200 Germans, including two battalion commanders, surrendered.

(Reuters in London quoted a radio dispatch as saying that Allied parachute troops had landed in the Reichswald forest.)

The American First Army, 85 miles to the south, advanced to within a mile of the vast Schwammendamm dam controlling flood waters on the Roer river—a barrier to the Ruhr and the Cologne plain.

The Third Army advanced to within a mile of Pruem and reached the Pruem river, eight miles inside the Reich.

The French First Army broke the last German opposition south of Strasbourg and drew up to the upper Rhine banks on a 90-mile front from north of Strasbourg to Switzerland.

Like an avalanche which moves slowly at first, Gen. Eisenhower's offensive along the western front was gathering power.

German broadcasts said the Canadians had breached Nazi lines in a large scale offensive. The weight of Allied attacks on other fronts also was said by Berlin to be increasing.

The British and Canadian troops of Gen. Henry Crerar's Canadian First Army were fighting less than eight miles from the elbow of the Rhine.

The British, cracking into the Reichswald from the northwest, overran Galgenstein and advanced beyond it. The Canadians, after a rough fight in Zylflich, advanced well to the east of it in the deepest new penetration of Germany within five miles of Kleve.

Supreme headquarters said 4083 prisoners were taken on Feb. 6, raising to more than 16,000 the number caged in a six-day period—most of them in lower Alsace.

The Canadian First Army offensive was in grand scale force and it was the first time the First Army, heavily bolstered by British troops, had been turned from its left flank anchor role and hurled eastward against the Reich.

Casualties were described officially as light. Every indication was that the Germans were caught by surprise, at least by the force of the onslaught, which was preceded by an 11-hour barrage and bombing and strafing by at least 1500 planes, many of them heavy bombers.

RUSSIAN FRONT—Russian tanks are "probing the outskirts of Berlin" according to a Finnish broadcast, while Moscow reports that Soviet troops are operating within a dozen kilocycles (seven and a half miles) from the German capital. Heavy Russian tank crossings of the Oder river were made by ferry, under artillery barrage.

Reds Nearer Stettin; Drive Perils Breslau

LONDON (AP)—The Russians have smashed to within 25 miles of Stettin, port of Berlin, and have exploded a fresh offensive northwest of Breslau threatening encirclement of that huge Silesian industrial center, it was reported today. Marshal Zhukov unlimbered one of the war's heaviest artillery batteries at fortifications along the Oder, temporarily blocking the way to Berlin.

One of the first towns to fall in the new offensive of Marshal Konev from his Maltch bridgehead over the Oder was Parchwitz, 30 miles west-northwest of Breslau, Berlin said. The German communiqué said the First Russian Army thrusts had carried "almost to the east fringe" of Liegnitz, rail center of 76,000 a little more than eight miles southeast of Parchwitz.

The Russian armies were within 40 miles of closing the escape gap from Breslau. The town of Kurtsch, 12 miles south of Breslau, was captured.

While Moscow had not officially confirmed the launching of the new drive, dispatches said Konev was "hitting at Liegnitz, guarding the approaches to Saxony." Rapid gains toward Stettin were reported in Moscow dispatches since the Soviet communiqué announced the capture of Reetz, Bernstein, Sammenthin and 100 other towns, the closest 38 miles from the Baltic port.

On the Berlin front, Zhukov was out-gunning the Germans in the grim duel across the middle Oder, but the Germans declared they had narrowed down or eliminated some of the seven bridgeheads they previously reported.

Moscow still had not officially announced any of these bridgeheads, and correspondents in the Soviet capital said it was unlikely any Soviet announcements would be made until the Russians were sure they had won the battle in this vital zone.

Northwest of Kuestrin, where the Germans have reported a bridgehead within 30 miles of Berlin, Moscow correspondents said heavy artillery fire was being laid down around Wriezen, German headquarters 23 miles northeast of Berlin, from Zauckerick and Zellin on the east bank.

Soviet infantrymen, with tank support, were battling to cut between Kuestrin and the Oder to seal the encirclement of the fortress had been broken.

The push toward the big shipbuilding center of Stettin was on a 40-mile front and threatened to carve a 13,500-square-mile area of Pomerania, the Polish corridor and Danzig into a huge pocket in which 20 or 30 German divisions might be trapped.

The closest announced approach to Stettin, a city of 270,000, was at Sammenthin, 18 miles south-east of Pylitz, which is 22 miles from Stettin.

The deepest drive toward the Baltic was at Reetz, northeast of Sammenthin, one of the chief points guarding the approaches of Stettin.

The Russians were within 13 miles of the Stettin-Stargard Danzig railway and, in this sector, were less than 60 miles from the Baltic.

Fleeing Mayor Hanged by Nazis

LONDON, Feb. 9 (AP)—The Germans announced today the execution of another mayor for fleeing his city before the advancing Red army.

Mayor Schroeter of Koenigsberg, a small Pomeranian town on the east side of the Oder between Berlin and Stettin, was "hanged for leaving his town without receiving evacuation orders," the Berlin radio said.

Hitler in Berlin During Bombing?

LONDON, Feb. 9 (AP)—A report Hitler was in Berlin during the bombing of the capital by American Fortresses Saturday was relayed to London today from a neutral source.

This account, although not regarded as authoritative, said Hitler took refuge in a deep bomb shelter under the reichschancellery, which the Army Air Forces announced was hit several times.

The Fuehrer was reported to have left the shelter just before the all-clear sirens sounded and to have sped out of Berlin in an automobile.

Blizzard Takes 10 Lives

N.E. Digs Out

BARNEY D'AMICO, RUTH CLOW SHOVEL OUT CAR

INP by Frank Turner

With transportation facilities in a chaotic condition, Boston and New England began the slow task today of digging out of the worst snowstorm in five years—a fall which cost at least ten lives, marooned thousands and caused millions of dollars in damage.

The blizzard, worst since the St. Valentine's Day storm of 1940, left 12 inches of new snow in most parts of New England and piled drifts as high as a dozen feet in outlying sections, ripping down telephone and power lines and bringing another crisis in already acute fuel shortages.

State and city and town laborers worked unceasingly through the night with trucks and plows, but at dawn train, trolley, and bus travel was tangled in a tangle which was virtually complete.

Adding to the difficulty of clearing the clogged highways were thousands of autos and heavily loaded trucks, which had stalled in the drifting snow and been abandoned temporarily by their drivers.

All bus lines out of Boston cancelled incoming and outgoing trips until further notice, while railroad lines announced that tracks had been sufficiently cleared by mid-morning to permit operation of most regular through trains, although these were running at least an hour behind schedule.

Commuters, however, were warned that service, if existent at all, was very bad and urged patrons to stay home unless they could obtain other transportation.

Recognizing the transportation crisis, the Boston Retail Trade Board announced all department stores and specialty shops in the downtown area would be closed for the day. School sessions also were cancelled in virtually every city and town in the State.

City Hall and State House operated with skeleton crews, made up of employees who managed to obtain transportation of some kind into the downtown area. Others struggled in during the day.

Suffolk court sessions were ordered closed, except in Probate court and in the Superior Court murder trial of five Roxbury boys. Only district court sessions were held for Middlesex County in East Cambridge.

The Boston Elevated was hit the hardest blow it has suffered since the 1940 blizzard which crippled its lines with a 14-inch snowfall.

Traffic on surface lines, many of which still were unplowed, was at a standstill as the early morning rush began. Crumbling of the transportation during the night had marooned thousands in the city and hotels bulged with those seeking refuge.

Cots were set up in halls and lobbies and other storm refugees, unable to get home, filled North and South Stations and snatched a night's sleep on hard wooden benches in waiting rooms.

Service on the Cambridge-Dorchester and Forest Hills-Everett rapid transit lines was almost normal for the rush hour, but thousands had to tramp through snowdrifts to reach them when

Weary Thousands Marooned As Blizzard Bogs Traffic

Their cars stalled, roads impassable, and taxicabs unavailable, more than 3000 Greater Boston residents awoke today in the downtown area after spending the night in hotel lobbies, street cars, police and fire stations, and bus terminals.

Police Supt. Edward Fallon, who estimated more than 3000 were stranded in the city's theatrical district, reported that more than 20 persons spent the night on a street car snowbound at St. Mary's st., Brookline, en route to the Reservoir-Beacon terminal.

More than 300 persons were isolated at the Lynn police station, and a hundred other Revere and Lynn residents spent the night in the Metropolitan police station at Revere.

Quincy police found accommodations for 550 persons, and in Malden, police put up 40 stranded residents to whom Red Cross workers served doughnuts and coffee.

In Hingham police opened the railroad station about 11 p. m. and more than 250 persons took shelter there. Another hundred or more were lodged in Odd Fellows Hall.

All downtown hotels reported they were booked to capacity and hundreds of uninvited guests were sleeping in lobby chairs and sofas.

In Newton, where more than 300 dancers spent the evening at the Totem Pole ballroom, several hundred couples were stranded early today when huge snow drifts ended all bus and trolley service.

The Red Cross mustered in Framingham and Natick to care for 100 stranded in the Fram-

Wedding Film Is FBI's Trap for Navy Poser

Trial of John J. Conroy, 45, charged with posing in uniform as a Navy officer and obtaining $600 from his Brighton bride on false pretences, resumed in Federal court today, after motion pictures had been shown in the courtroom to prove the government's contention that he had masqueraded as a naval officer.

FILE WEDDING INTENTIONS—Mrs. Marguerite Coulbourne, 26, pretty Washington widow, whose intention to wed Donald Nelson, former WBP chief, has been filed in Washington, D. C., district court. He was recently divorced in Chicago.

The film showed Conroy, for whom Boston police have obtained a bigamy warrant, wearing a white summer Navy uniform and giving a snappy salute as he and his "bride," Ann J. McGuire, 41, of Commonwealth ave., Brighton, left the church after a wedding ceremony Aug. 9, last.

She testified that she became suspicious of Conroy's Navy status in November and that the FBI had investigated and found him working aboard a merchant ship. Also they found that he was married to a Somerville woman.

The debonair defendant is accused of obtaining $600 from his Brighton bride under false pretences.

Joseph H. Donovan of the Boston traffic bureau testified he was best man at the wedding. Donovan, a veteran of the Coast Guard, said he was in uniform at the time and the defendant wore the uniform of a Navy officer.

Miss McGuire, a Boston bank employee, testified that when she first met Conroy, he wore a Navy officer's uniform, told her of heroic exploits overseas and wore the Purple Heart and other medals.

After their wedding, she said, Conroy went to work as a stevedore, telling her that he was "on leave of absence." She said she gave him a total of $185 in cash and spent approximately $415 more for wedding expenses.

Miss McGuire, who said her bank salary was $130 a month, testified that Conroy did not give her more than a total of $50 from the time of their marriage.

Conroy's first wife, said to be a prominent merchandising executive, listened intently to the Brighton woman's testimony from a spectator's bench where she sat with a woman companion. Conroy, debonair and nattily dressed, has lived in Cambridge, Somerville and West Hartford, Ct.

Boy Tells Story Of Marine Killing

Trial of five Roxbury boys charged with the second degree murder and robbery of John F. Prunty, Marine veteran of two wars, was resumed in Suffolk superior court today following admission of a statement by Francis X. Mulligan, 16, of Tremont st., which described the beating of Prunty.

In addition to Mulligan the defendants are John J. Donovan, 16, of Worthington st., John D. Durant, 16, of St. Alphonsus st., Francis X. Muller, 15, of Burney st., and Gerard F. Shields, 16, of Tremont st.

In his statement, made in response to questions by Lt. Joseph B. Fallon of the homicide squad, Mulligan said he tied the service belt around Prunty's throat to "keep him from yelling." The youth also said he kicked the discharged Marine on the head while the others were attacking him, and that later the group divided $125 taken from his pockets.

Mulligan, in the statement, said Prunty was lured into the Fenway by young Shields.

"I heard a yell and a guy was lying on the ground. We all jumped on him. I hit him in the face. He was fighting and trying to get up. He was yelling so I tied his belt around his neck."

2 Die in Chicago Explosion, Fire

CHICAGO, Feb. 9 (AP)—Two men were believed to have died today in a spectacular fire which shot flames 230 feet into the air from the plant of the Verling Steel Co.

Ray Olsen, night superintendent, said the two were near him on the second floor when an explosion occurred, and that he heard them screaming. Fifteen others, all welders, escaped.

Fire Commr. Michael J. Corrigan estimated damage at $150,000.

Mercy Flight Baby Is Ready for Operation

Rushed here from the mid-West on the mercy flight of an Army transport plane which plunged through a driving snowstorm, a 4-day-old baby girl lay on the operating table at Children's Hospital today as Boston surgeons prepared for an operation to save her life.

OX TEAMS REPLACE SNOW PLOWS—While New England digs itself out after the worst storm since the St. Valentine's day storm, five years ago, Shirley Sanborn of Salisbury, N. H., uses an ox team to perform his ploughing needs when drifts, estimated at 50 inches, isolated his farm.

The infant, whose life depends on today's delicate surgery, was flown to Boston from Utah under the most adverse flying conditions. She is the daughter of Army Lt. and Mrs. Hyman Weisberg of New York, and is suffering from a defective esophagus, which prevents passage of food to the stomach.

Dr. W. E. Ladd, famed Boston child specialist, was scheduled to operate on the youngster, whose defective stomach system imperils her life.

The baby was taken to Children's Hospital after an emergency landing at the East Boston airport. The pilot, Capt. Norval P. Cavett, of the Ogden, Utah, Air Technical Service Command, circled the field for 12 minutes before he found a hole in the snow big enough to permit a landing.

Throughout the 20-hour flight from Utah, the baby, accompanied by her father, an Army physician, Capt. Charles H. Cutler of San Francisco, and an Army nurse, 2 Lt. Elva H. Oblinger of Monroe, N. Y., had been given artificial feeding and oxygen had been administered as a precautionary measure.

The plane had stopped for refueling at Grand Island, Neb., and at Patterson Field, O., where a driving northeast blizzard made the final leg of the flight a desperate and hazardous one.

The pilots said they thought for a time they would be forced to detour to a Maine or New Hampshire airport, but learning that weather conditions were just as bad there, they decided to attempt the Boston landing.

Crash wagons and ambulances waited at the scene as the huge plane circled and at length picked up the radio beam and broke through the clouds at 200 feet, just above the airport control towers. The baby, with her father, nurse and physician, was whisked to the hospital.

The baby's father is stationed at Kearns overseas replacement depot in Salt Lake City and his wife is still in a Utah hospital.

Gallarelli Indicted In Medford Slaying

The Middlesex County grand jury yesterday returned an indictment charging murder in the first degree against Samuel Gallarelli, 25, of Medford, in connection with the fatal shooting of John E. MacKenzie, 39-year-old ex-convict, of Quincy.

The killing, in which four shots were fired, took place in Gallarelli's home last Jan. 17, it was alleged. Gallarelli is married and the father of two small children.

While the jury was in session, Gallarelli, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Leo J. Wilson, went to Boston to attend the funeral of his father.

LONDON, Feb. 8 (AP)—Queen Elizabeth inspected a kitchen exhibit today and, peeped inside of a plastic sofa on a prefabricated heating unit.

"Oh!" she exclaimed. "No coal! Just like most homes now." Then she observed, "My kitchen, it has been cold in Buckingham Palace."

Nazis Lose Control In Stricken Berlin

LONDON, Feb. 9 (INS)—The London Daily Mail reported in dispatches from Stockholm that German police authorities and Nazi party members could no longer maintain law and order in threatened Berlin.

The Daily Mail quoted Swedish refugees, 22 of whom arrived in Malmö, Sweden, after leaving the Reich on what they described as possibly the last passenger train from Berlin.

The haggard refugees, some suffering from injuries suffered in last Saturday's giant air raid, said a state of siege will be proclaimed in Berlin any moment.

The drawn and dazed group painted a grim picture of conditions in the German capital. One of them said:

"The job of maintaining a semblance of law and order and keeping up food supplies is now utterly beyond the police and the Nazi party."

The refugees stressed that one of the innumerable signs of the breakdown in civil organization since the record U. S. air smash at Berlin was the impossibility of obtaining Christian burial. One Swede said:

"Thousands of bodies of Berliners who were killed in the raids or who died of hunger, exposure or disease, have been buried in the streets. Squads parade the stricken quarters collecting bodies to place in mass graves without identification."

"Some bodies were even burned in funeral pyres. It was like the end of the world."

A Swedish engineer reported: "The American airmen used a new type bomb Saturday. People were killed by air pressure in shelters scores of feet from the nearest bomb craters."

"The bombs held a great weight of explosives and had a fantastically wide blasting effect."

Other dispatches from Zurich quoted refugees from Berlin as describing the Nazi capital as a gigantic fortress within which the Nazis were prepared to fulfill their promise to defend the city to the last stone.

Baby's Daddy With Philippines Liberation Army

Tiny Barbara, Age 2, Winning Life Battle

Weighing only 15 pounds, tiny Barbara Jane Beecher, of Middlesex ave., Reading, will celebrate her second birthday this Sunday but the joy of the day will be increased by her family's knowledge that she is winning her fight for life.

Missing from the family celebration will be her father, Sgt. Frank R. Beecher, a lineal descendant of Henry Ward Beecher, who is serving with the U. S. Army of Liberation in the Philippines. The father has never seen his little daughter.

A former Reading High School and University of Iowa football star, Beecher met her mother, the former Edna See, of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., in the middle west. They have another daughter, Virginia, 11.

Barbara weighed only four pounds, 14 ounces when she was born in Boston and, troubled with a weak heart, has been forced to battle three attacks of pneumonia during her short life. She is under the care of Dr. Earl H. Beasley, Reading heart specialist, and Dr. Jeannette Lumsden, Reading child specialist.

Bay State Holds Fast To Flag Salute Law

The Massachusetts legislature has retained the law requiring school children to salute the American flag despite a ruling by the U. S. Supreme Court that such laws are unconstitutional. The law remained by action of the House in accepting the report of the Committee on Education of "no legislation necessary" on a bill filed by Education Commissioner Julius E. Warren for repeal of the law.

Nazi Army Lure For Colepaugh

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP)—A 26-year-old American, depicted as an admirer of the Nazi army, and a 35-year-old German companion, whom he suspected and feared, faced a seven-man military commission again today at a hearing on spy charges.

The accused men are William Curtis Colepaugh, native of Niantic, Ct., and German-born Erich Gimpel. The FBI says the two men were landed on the Maine shore Nov. 29 from a German submarine to commit espionage and sabotage.

The FBI has introduced a 34-page statement taken from Colepaugh which said in part:

"At the beginning when Germans went through Austria, they flooded America with propaganda about the German army, and I got the idea that was something I wanted to get into."

He added that his admiration was "mostly" for the German army, not for the German government.

Held as Champ Navy Imposter

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 9 (AP)—John Fabian Hannon, 58, is charged with impersonating a U. S. Navy commodore and Nat Pieper, FBI special agent, said the man had posed for years as a Navy officer.

He recently promoted himself to commodore "in charge of all naval operations along the Pacific coast," said Pieper.

Pieper added that Hannon had posed as a captain in Providence, R. I., and after telling how he had been decorated while master of a mythical naval transport, "Great Scott," sunk off Guadalcanal, he prevailed on a wealthy Providence couple to give him $1200 in cash and about $500 in personal possessions. Today's charge accused Hannon of obtaining $300 from Harold M. Horton of Providence on Nov. 24, 1944.

'Victory Girl' Problem Stirs Kansas Action

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 9 (AP)—The farm-dominated Kansas legislature is resolutely plowing into a tough, and primarily an urban, problem: What should be done about the Victory Girl?

Victory Girls, as defined by Paul R. Shanahan, a Salina, Kan., farmer and member of the House of Representatives, "are those who follow military camps and swarm around defense plants. They don't get anything out of it but a few hamburgers and a place to live. But they create manpower problems."

Veneral infections for soldiers and workers have increased steadily, the Republican legislator said.

What's to be done about it?

Well, at least two bills will be considered. One would tighten state statutes against prostitutes to catch teen age sex violators. It also would permit prosecutors to class automobiles and trailers as houses of ill repute.

Another bill would make pandering in Kansas a felony. There is no strict law at present. Shanahan told of a bomber crew, ready to take off for foreign service. Then a crew member was found suffering from a social disease.

"As a result," he said, "the whole crew was forced to delay the trip while awaiting a replacement. The same thing shows up in absentee reports of defense plants."

Shanahan declared that conditions had become so bad in some cities near camps that military authorities had been compelled to declare the whole city out of bounds.

He cited a Kansas city of about 20,000 that had near it an Army camp with twice that many soldiers.

"These boys are young and virile and need some sort of recreation—but not this," Shanahan said. "They'll try anything to get a girl."

Sometimes girls are induced to visit their soldier boy friends when told they can get jobs in nearby towns.

"The girl finally arrives only to find that the soldier didn't mean what he said and now has another girl friend," Shanahan said.

"Some of these girls are innocent and really feel left out. They start following the line of least resistance—and you've got a Victory Girl."

Wives Clubs Seen Spreading Rapidly

The establishment and preparation of social centers for the wives of men in uniform progressed rapidly today in every district of the city where the Boston School Committee has donated the use of school buildings for the purpose. Many civic and community organizations have enthusiastically endorsed the innovation and have proffered support.

A name for the proposed centers is being sought in a contest being conducted by the Record-American-Sunday Advertiser. All wives and mothers of servicemen are eligible to enter and may send their name suggestions to Servicemen's Wives Contest Editor, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston 6, Mass. The first prize in the contest is a $100 war bond and a $50 bond as second prize.

Of the thousands of servicemen's wives who flock into Boston every month, approximately 600 need help immediate enough to seek it from the Travelers' Aid Society. Mrs. Emily R. Houghton, director, points out. She promises full support of her organization in the Servicemen's Wives club centers in their behalf.

"To many of these wives and mothers, we are their first contact in Boston," Mrs. Houghton said. "We do all we can to make that the friendliest kind of introduction to the city and make them feel they are welcome to come back."

"We have no way of knowing how many are only here for a visit with husbands in service, or how many make this their duration home," she said. "However, a certain percentage of them need all the aid and companionship Boston can offer."

Most of those who appeal to the Travelers' Aid want either a room or help in finding their husbands, Mrs. Houghton added.

Paulist Fathers Buy Historic Home

Purchase of the old Josiah Quincy home at 4-6 Park st., by the Paulist Fathers, Catholic missionary order, was announced today from the New York headquarters. The property consists of two colonial buildings four stories high, and a seven-story building erected in 1809. The Paulist order proposes to build a combination church and religious foundation on the site.

Rockie Fireman Turns Firebug

DENVER, Feb. 9 (AP)—A probation member of the volunteer fire department in a Denver suburb was too enthusiastic about his work, Sheriff Chick Foster reports.

The probationer admitted starting eight fires just for the fun of putting them out.

Blasts Destroy Big Steel Works

CHICAGO, Feb. 9 (INS)—A series of explosions and a fire wrecked the Vierling Steel Works, engaged in vital war production, early today.

Officials of the company said that 18 of 20 men working in a section of the half-block long plant where the explosions occurred escaped, but that the two others were unaccounted for.

The explosion hurled bricks and flaming debris into the air and set afire one of the five engines which responded to special alarms.

Police Arrest 2 As Taxi Bandits

Two more suspects in Boston's taxicab bandit gang were in police custody today. The youths, arrested in Springfield by Cambridge police, were snowbound in Worcester with detectives who were returning with them to Cambridge.

Arrest of the two men followed by a few hours arraignment of Phyllis A. Stella, 17, of Maryland St., Dorchester, and Michael Calabica, 18, of Second St., Cambridge, in East Cambridge court, on robbery charges.

Both pleaded not guilty, but admitted taking part in at least three holdups, police said.

AFL Asks Lewis' Peace Terms

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 9 (AP)—John L. Lewis was asked today to make a formal declaration of the terms under which he would bring the United Mine Workers back to the American Federation of Labor.

The A. F. of L. executive council requested the statement before acting on the proposed re-affiliation of Lewis and his 600,000 miners, who left the federation in 1937.

Lewis' terms are said to be that he will return to the AFL "as is" and have the council adjudicate any jurisdictional disputes. These would arise mainly because of his miscellaneous District 50, which includes trades other than mining.

'Undertaker's Parlor' Plane Plant Entrance

LONDON, Feb. 9 (AP)—A Budapest establishment camouflaged as an undertaker's parlor has been found to be the entrance to an underground aircraft parts factory, the Moscow radio said today. The Germans employed thousands of foreign workers there.

British Fliers Use New Bomb

LONDON (AP)—British air-men are using a new type of anti-personnel bomb with success in support of the Canadian drive on the northern flank of the western front, it was disclosed today.

The device consists of a number of small fragmentation bombs in a single casing, which scatter in all directions when the casing explodes.

The bomb is useful in breaking up troop concentrations when dropped by fighters bombers at low altitude.

FUR---INSTANCE!

Did you ever see a bargain with a price so low it dared you to buy—a bargain that sounded almost too good to be true? That's what happened to Miss — browsing through Filene's Basement one day. There it was on the rack—a dyed black Persian lamb fur coat with a $74 price tag. She couldn't believe her eyes—it was real nice looking Persian lamb—it was a small size. She tried it on and it was HER size—but she didn't need that kind of fur coat—it was short with sort of a tunic bustle—but it was long on this rather petite person—"BUT IT IS ONLY $74 and I COULD CUT A PIECE OFF!" she mused to herself. However, even $74 is a lot of money when you don't need a fur coat—but this was such a wonderful piece of fur and such a value! Well, the moral of the story is—she bought the coat—it was late in the season —so next year tunic jackets were all the style—out came the $74 Filene's Basement fur coat, a piece had been taken off and now only did this Thrifty Miss get a fur hat, but a miff to match! That's not only doubling your money, but tripling it—right?

Storm Buries Hub, Ties Up Traffic

the blizzard crippled surface car and bus feeder systems.

Commuters were packed like sardines in whatever trains and cars were running. East and westbound traffic on the Beacon st., Commonwealth ave. and Watertown lines was at a standstill beyond Kenmore sq. and thousands walked from Brookline, Brighton, Watertown and Newton to Kenmore to clog that station to capacity as they waited to be packed into downtown bound cars.

Hundreds more crammed stations all along the route, but were delayed for as much as three hours before they could clamber into packed cars and trains.

Railroad lines managed to make better progress in battling the drifting snow. Both the New Haven road and the Boston & Maine reported they had cleared all outgoing trains last night except the B. & M. train for Portsmouth, although they ran from c. e. to two hours late.

The Boston & Maine announced frankly today, however, that only spasmodic service could be maintained today and tonight and that no guarantee on schedules could be offered until some semblance of maintaining through traffic had been achieved.

"We want to tell frankly only one whose only means of transportation to Boston is by train that it will be best to stay at home," officials of the road declared.

An appeal was issued to Army officials by the road for aid of servicemen in cleaning hundreds of snow-clogged switches and clearing out huge drifts in passenger and freight stations, which were tying up efforts to clear the lines for through traffic.

The New Haven railroad reported it had used a number of soldiers as well as other hastily-recruited manpower during the night to clear yards and switches and keep through trains and vital war freight moving.

Southeastern Massachusetts lines of the road were disrupted completely until noon but line officials said they could not hope

Storm Mystery

The Army dispelled the mystery of the "airplane" which the Lawrence area believed was circling about Lawrence airport trying to find the landing field last night. Officials at Grenier Field, Manchester, N. H., said the "plane" was actually a number of planes all of which reached their destinations safely.

to establish any regular commuter service in the South Shore area before late afternoon.

The first morning train for New York, scheduled at 8 a. m., pulled out of the station at 9:15 a. m. and others following were only a bit closer to schedule.

But line officials reported that service to all points had been cancelled but that empty buses had concentrated in Park sq. and Haymarket sq. terminals to add further woe to the city's complicated transportation tieup.

Efforts to play streets in the city and highways outside were held up continually by stalled and abandoned autos and trucks and snow removal workers were forced to haul the stalled machines out of the way before they could go on with their work.

The storm blasted light and communication systems in many areas. Numerous South Shore communities reported street lights were out in many areas as the blizzard ripped down power lines. Edison company officials admitted their systems had been hard hit and said emergency crews had worked through the night to try and maintain or restore service.

Telephone company officials reported 3200 lines out of service and 50 toll circuits disrupted. Two main circuits between Boston and Providence were reported out of order and two more between Boston and Worcester, R. I., also were down. Provincetown has been isolated from all outside telephone communication since 8:45 last night.

Many operators, due to go off duty last night, remained through the night at their switchboards when relief operators were unable to reach central exchanges for duty.

Mayor Kerrigan issued an early appeal for motorists to refrain from all but emergency driving today. He also asked that all cars stalled in the streets be removed by their owners as soon as possible to speed the snow-clearing work.

BATTALION STRANDED

Army officials instructed all soldiers on leave to remain where they were and report to the nearest police stations, where their serial numbers and identity would be noted and relayed to the camps or bases to which they were attached.

In Brockton, an entire Military Police battalion, en route from Ft. Devens to an undisclosed camp on Cape Cod, became stranded when the convoy of trucks became stalled on the outskirts of the city. All the 500 men in the battalion were temporarily housed in the city's fire and police stations.

In Lynn and Salem, fire apparatus, police cars and city trucks were placed at the disposal of physicians to answer emergency calls. In Belmont Mrs. Marjorie F. Brown of Concord ave., an expectant mother, was rushed to the Cambridge Hospital. The trip, which would ordinarily take 15 minutes, took an hour and a half to complete, but the hospital was reached before the storm arrived. Three similar trips were made by police in Norwood.

Scores of persons in the metropolitan area were injured battling the storm. In Everett Mrs. Mary Carmody of Hancock st., stumbled into a deep gutter and was taken to Malden Hospital suffering severe lacerations at the legs. Max Brooks of Kimball st., Malden, was injured when he walked into the side of an auto in Everett.

A line of stalled autos a mile long extended from Assumption Hill, Wellesley, along the Worcester turnpike. Several 10-wheel trucks, loaded with food supplies, were among stalled vehicles in Topsfield, along the Newburyport turnpike.

Damage to trees was expected to be the worst for many years, the weight of the snow bringing branches crashing to the ground, while the gale wind ripped up others by the roots.

Cape Cod, recently recovered from the effects of the last hurricane, was again hard hit. Electricity was cut off from widespread stations, with home owners lacking lights and power. The Barnstable County Sanitarium at Pocasset was without light or power.

All police cruising cars in Boston were ordered off the streets and held at stations on order of Supt. Fallon. Men in the divisions who had worked the early night shift were held on duty until the full day duty men had reported. Because of the many extra men required for traffic duty, police officials were unable to accede to appeals from car owners whose autos were stalled in the streets. Garages with tow cars were so swamped with calls they could answer only a few.

Collapses, Dies In Snowdrift

LAWRENCE, Feb. 9—Collapsing only a few feet from his doorstep, Andrew Jovorek, 55-year-old driver of Concord st., died today while struggling through a four-foot snowdrift.

His body was found by 15-year-old George Desrosiers, a neighbor. Police said Jovorek still held a cigar in his hand.

Because of the inability of a police ambulance to enter the street, officers were forced to carry the body a half-mile to the nearest undertaking establishment. Death is believed to have been due to natural causes.

Rewarded

For 40 years, Joseph Catalano of Lowell st., Arlington, has never missed a morning at the Boston Market Terminal where he buys for a produce firm supplying hospitals and hotels.

This morning he beat his way in—walking most of the way—and arrived only 10 minutes later than usual—at 5:10.

He was the only buyer who showed up, and there were no salesmen. However, he finally managed to buy some celery and oranges, the only food to arrive.

ingham town hall and 40 in the Natick town hall.

Hundreds of war workers en route to East Boston and North Shore plants found shelter in East Boston. More than 300 were accommodated at East Boston police station while firemen of Engine 11 and Ladder 21 found quarters for 92.

By combining trains, the railroads were able to clear North and South stations of most persons desiring transportation out of the city before midnight. However, those with distant destinations who could not find accommodations bedded down in the terminals and their number grew as stragglers sought non-running early morning trains.

Bus terminals were thronged with tired travelers. Hotels dug out all available cots and set them up in corridors, ballrooms, lounges and dining rooms to care for the overflow. Even then all seeking beds could not be cared for and lobby chairs and divans were at a premium.

Boston's City Hall was opened to persons stranded downtown on the order of Mayor Kerrigan.

No School Today

Supt. of Schools Arthur L. Gould cancelled all sessions of Boston public schools today because of the storm. His move was followed by virtually every school department in Greater Boston.

Lights and heat were turned on and word was sent out on the police teletype that persons could be quartered there. A detail of police from Division 2 played host.

Navy Vet in Congress Hits Colleague on Wives' Trips

By NORMAN WALKER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—A word battle on proposed overseas junkets for servicemen's wives today embroiled two Navy men just back from the Philippine fighting to take seats in Congress.

Bachelor Jim Fulton, Pittsburgh Republican, started it. Back in this country only a week, he came out with the idea of sending wives, even families, of fighting men abroad to "boost morale."

Then Henry J. Latham, a 36-year-old New York Republican and also a Navy lieutenant, arrived to doff his uniform and become a civilian House member too.

"The Navy," Latham reacted, "has enough to do without getting into that. It's a rugged life out there, impossible for women."

Latham, a married man with two children, recalled that a WAC dinner guest on his ship "got a big lift just out of seeing a bathtub again." He served as a navigator on an attack transport, Fulton as an airplane carrier's officer of the deck.

"Men move fast when a big push is on," Latham declared. "They couldn't accomplish much with children running around under foot."

But Fulton still figures he's right.

"If Clare Boothe Luce can go visiting the war fronts," he maintained, "some of these wives of servicemen ought to be allowed to go on junkets, too."

"They have junkets of Congressmen, junkets of labor men and junkets of businessmen living over almost every day," Fulton said, "and I don't see why we can't have junkets for the wives of fighting men."

Military Allotment $260, Still Works

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 9 (AP)—Mrs. Lucille DeWolf, 34-year-old mother of 12 children whose monthly military allotment totals $260, says she's working "to make ends meet."

Wife of Fireman 1c Charles DeWolf of the Navy, Mrs. DeWolf said her allotment check will go to $280 when the government "gets around to completing records on the birth four months ago of my youngest, Lucille."

Nazi Wounded Pour Into Danish Hospitals

LONDON, Feb. 9 (AP)—The Moscow radio said today the Germans had ordered Danish authorities to make preparations to care for 10,000 German wounded, thus creating a serious situation in already crowded hospitals in Denmark.

The broadcast said streams of wounded from the eastern front were pouring into Denmark and the Danes were hard-put to find facilities for them.

Prowl Cars Help 2 Girls Beat Stork

Storms don't interfere with births even if police prowler cars have to be pressed into service.

This was demonstrated early today when a cruising car was hailed to take Mrs. Mary Callaghan, 38, wife of Cornelius Callaghan, 40, to Faulkner Hospital, for delivery of a baby girl.

Earlier, Mrs. John J. Griffin, unable to get transportation was taken in a prowler car from her home in Porter st., Malden, to St. Luke's Hospital, Malden, where she gave birth to a baby girl.

Death Claims Mrs. MacRae

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., Feb. 9 (AP)—Mrs. Mary Virginia MacRae, national American Legion Auxiliary president in 1930 and credited with organizing the Comfort Club, forerunner of the USO, died here after a long illness.

Comfort clubs, organized during the Philippines campaign in 1898-99, raised money for fighting men to buy food and medical supplies.

Boy Killed, Scores Hurt in Cairo Riots

CAIRO, Feb. 9 (AP)—The government announced today a 14-year-old boy had been killed, 54 policemen injured and hundreds of persons arrested during student riots this week, accounts of which had been banned by censorship.

The communique said that agents of an Egyptian political party had incited the rioting.

Dewey Demands U. S. Peace Policy

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (INS)—President Roosevelt, shaping the nation's peace pattern in the "Big Three" conference overseas, was given a demand for forthright action and a pledge of support today by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, spokesman for twenty-two million anti-New Deal Americans.

In his first public address since his presidential defeat last November, the New York state governor told a Lincoln Day dinner audience of Republican leaders that the time has passed for "glittering generalities" by government chiefs.

The American people, he declared, asked that the world decisions now being drafted "shall not be concealed and shall not be devious . . . shall not be made in the cynical spirit of power politics."

But it was his timely appraisal of the country's role in the current Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin conference which won most attention and most applause.

"The opinion of our people has crystallized," he stated. "They want the United States to accept its responsibilities for the vital decisions affecting the future of the world. Those who speak for our country need no longer hide behind fine phrases and glittering generalities."

"There need no longer be any doubt anywhere, that the American people are prepared to exercise their great power actively, continuously and effectively in the interest of a just and lasting peace."

Dewey then called specific attention to the "Big Three" meeting now being held somewhere in the Black Sea area.

He criticized the nation's leaders for being "absent from the scene" when decisions were made affecting the government and boundary questions of such liberated nations as Poland, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Italy and Greece in the past three months.

Urges Equality For All Women

Advisory council member of the National Woman's Party and Democratic National Committee-woman Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller of Pennsylvania, said yesterday at Eastern University's College of Business Administration the minimum wage law has not worked well.

"A few years ago I thought the minimum wage law was a fine idea. But this law that applies only to women, means that in bad times a man or boy can outbid women for wages and work for less money."

Mrs. Miller said she hopes the committees of Congress will report soon on the proposed amendment that we should have equal justice throughout this country. A woman should be able to pick her own occupation, be responsible for contract, own property. She demands equal rights for both married and single women and no discrimination of the so-called weaker sex.

Says GI Bill Ups Costs to Schools

The GI Bill of Rights is aiding education, but it is increasing the problems and expenses of universities.

This was the message which Gov. J. Howard McGrath of R. I. left today with more than 500 members of the alumni of Boston University who attended the roll call dinner at the Hotel Statler.

Governor McGrath

President Marsh

"The trustees of our alma mater have named this the roll call dinner," Gov. McGrath said. "Actually, it is the 'kick-in' dinner. The government reimburses veterans for attending school. But no one reimburses schools and colleges for providing that much needed education. Let us not forget that our university has a duty and an honor to provide these courses. It is the duty of all of us to contribute the funds to make such opportunities forever available."

Boston to Be Post War Air Center

Boston must not only become an outstanding air terminal, but must be recognized as a key city in respect to international air transport operations, according to Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker, president and general manager of Eastern Airlines.

"Eastern Airlines favor making Boston a trans-Atlantic terminal, not merely in name but in fact," Rickenbacker said. "We think of Boston as an important link in transoceanic operations which must experience a tremendous upsurge as soon as military hostilities will permit."

Beauty, Health Share Flower Show Honors

Vitamins and beauty, cabbages and orchids will combine to make a wartime display at the 74th annual New England Spring Flower Show, to be held in Horticultural Hall March 10 to 17.

The show will have a four-point program, with experts on hand to acquaint victory gardeners with the best vegetable varieties for backyard planting.

Two Left Feet?

NEW BEDFORD, Feb. 9—Somewhere today there is a thief who must be shedding tears of chagrin, for he is left holding the bag he stole from the local bus terminal during its owner's momentary absence.

The bag happened to contain shoes used as samples by George E. Dubois, a salesman for a Boston shoe firm, but the thief didn't know when he stole them that they were all for the left foot.

Paraguay's War On Axis Hailed

14—Boston American, Feb. 9

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (INS)—Acting Secretary of State Joseph C. Grew declared that Paraguay's declaration of war against Germany and Japan is new evidence of "inter-American solidarity."

By its action, Paraguay joined Bolivia as the second South American nation to enter the fight against both major enemies of the United States. A third, Colombia, maintains a "state of belligerency" against both nations.

Ecuador recently indicated that she will honor her declaration of war on Japan despite the assumption of Iscari by a new regime in Quito. While Ecuador is at war with Japan alone, Brazil has declared a state of war with Germany only.

All Latin-American countries have severed diplomatic relations with both Germany and Japan.

Wallace Issue Heads for Vote

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP).—The congressional controversy over the government future of Henry A. Wallace marched today into the House rules committee, where a majority admittedly opposes him.

However, before the powerful committee opened public hearings, Speaker Rayburn (D.) of Texas personally intervened to forestall shelving there of the George bill. This bill would clear the way for the former Vice-President to become Secretary of a Commerce Department shorn of RFC and other loan agencies.

It now appears the committee will vote, sometime next week, to let the George bill go on the House floor for a vote, but under a special rule allowing a vote on an amendment taking away President Roosevelt's war power to reassign federal agencies.

Wallace opponents want this amendment, they say, to make sure the President assigns no duties to the former Vice-President other than those of a bob-tailed Commerce Department.

SPARS' Story Discounted

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 9 (Canadian Press).—The Royal Canadian Navy issued a statement today saying that evidence taken so far in investigation of charges concerning the conduct of Navy ratings during a cruise with United States Coast Guard men and women "tends to indicate the incident was greatly exaggerated."

The cruise on a Navy tug that was to last three hours but ended after 40 minutes and unconfirmed charges were made later that girl members of the touring show "Tars and Spars" had been insulted and molested.

Officials of the show refused to comment on charges the girls were insulted or on allegations that some of the Canadian sailors were intoxicated. The company left here for Ft. Lewis, Wash., early in the week.

Coast Guard to Hold Nation Wide Exams

Examinations for young men between the ages of 17 and 22 for entrance to the United States Coast Guard Academy at New London, Ct., will be held throughout the United States May 9 and 10. Coast Guard headquarters announced today.

Selection for cadetship, which leads to a regular commission in the Coast Guard after completion of a four-year course, is based on competitive examinations. Congressional appointment is not involved.

Admits Killing Sailor's Wife

PLYMOUTH, Pa., Feb. 9 (INS) —State police announced that Ray Mehochick, 20-year-old Benton timber cutter, confessed he had strangled Mrs. Mary Ulozas whose body was found in a creek bed near her home.

According to police, Mehochick admitted he attempted to attack the victim, 29-year-old wife of a U. S. seaman on duty in the Pacific, while walking her home from a cafe. He will be arraigned on a murder charge in Plymouth today.

Work-or-Jail Foes Gaining

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Sen. Chandler (D.) of Kentucky reported today that opposition to the work-or-jail bill is growing in the Senate Military Committee which is rounding out its first week of semi-secret hearings on the measure.

Friends of the bill, however, said they are encouraged by the general trend of testimony and the concerted endorsement of the measure by high government officials.

Although no tangible progress has been made in four days, Sen. Austin (R.) of Vermont, an advocate of the legislation, said he saw no signs of stalling within the committee and declared "we're moving as fast as we can."

Nevertheless, Chairman Thomas (D.) of Utah, expects the hearings to continue at least all next week.

The Senators meanwhile got official notice of one GI reaction to the bill as written by Rep. May (D.) of Kentucky. Sen. Maybank (D.) of South Carolina, inserted in the committee record a copy of an editorial from the Army newspaper Stars and Stripes calling for passage of the legislation and declaring its name should be changed from "The May Bill" to the "Must" bill.

Sen. Brooks (R.) of Illinois, a frequent opponent of Administration policies, hit out at the measure in a Senate speech yesterday, saying that Gen. Marshall and Adm. King were in part to blame for civilian overconfidence. Brooks declared they had "helped play down our real reverses and losses, and under the guise of 'morale' have played up the successes of our forces."

He said he was not impressed by their endorsement of the bill, because while professional military experts, "they are not experts on assembly lines and the art of labor and management cooperation."

Hero of Bastogne Killed in Action

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP)—Col. Lansing McVikar, 50, commander of the Third Army's 318th regiment, the first unit to break through the German ring around Bastogne and relieve the 101st Division, was killed Jan. 14 in Luxemburg, the War Department has notified his wife, Mrs. Emma Marie McVikar, of Cold Spring Harbor, Long Island, N. Y.

Hollywood

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 9.—Rumors that Kay Francis has been very ill in New York have been greatly exaggerated. In fact, she's back again and hard at work at Monogram on her first picture.

Kay, as you may remember, is to produce "Divorce" and will play the heavy in it—the woman who steals the husband away from his wife and children. Bruce Cabot has been signed to play opposite her.

Bruce, by the way, hasn't yet talked to his friend, Errol Flynn, on account of Errol's not talking to any of his friends, but doing an awful lot of talking at the cocktail parties in New York. He and Fred McEvoy are leaving for Florida, while Nora Eddington continues to remain with the baby in Mexico City.

Kay Francis

I THINK, WITHOUT ANY doubt, Ann Revere is one of the finest actresses on the screen. I thought so when I saw her in "Song of Bernadette," and again in "National Velvet." Both times she played a mother role. Now Otto Preminger has cast her in a part he believes is the most important of any in her career. She plays the older sister in "Fallen Angel," the Marty Holland novel. Again it's a mother role, for she takes care of her beautiful younger sister. She's really becoming typed as a mother, but in this case I think we cannot but approve.

JOHNNY WEISSMULLER better start counting his calories this minute. Come May—or thereabouts—he leaves with the Bill Pine-Bill Thomas company for New Orleans to make "Swamp Fire" right on the spot. It's a romantic story of the Modern South (as Joe E. Brown calls it), with Johnny playing a river pilot.

THE RESEMBLANCE between Betty Grable and little June Haver, with their identical make-up for "The Dolly Sisters," is striking. Of course, little June is smaller, more slender, but she's had her hair made the same color as Betty's. I watched them rehearse a number they were supposed to do for Oscar Hammerstein, and it was very effective—a song and dance routine, which was to be shot the next day.

CONSTANCE DOWLING, from whom Samuel Goldwyn expected such big things after she made her debut with Danny Kaye in "Up in Arms," is now on the Paramount lot. She'll have the second female lead in "The Well-Groomed Bride," starring Olivia de Havilland and Ray Milland. Connie's sister, Doris, a pretty brunette, is also on the Para lot and has just finished "The Lost Weekend."

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Most of Eleanor Parker's telephone calls these days go to Bobby Anderson, who used to be seen often with Faye

Emerson before she married Elliott Roosevelt; Rosalind Russell suffered a black eye in an automobile accident, as well as a bump on her head, but thank goodness it wasn't more serious; Mr. and Mrs. John Nicholas Brown (the was once known as the richest boy in the world) are looking Hollywood over; Ala. Marshall is improving and it won't be long before he returns to the screen.

JOHNNY PAYNE has a terrific beef. He says he's never seen his bride, Gloria De Haven, on the screen and so far he hasn't been able to get a print of "Two Girls and a Sailor." He wants to see her; Victoria Elizabeth James gave both her parents, Betty Grable and Harry James, a terrible scare when she ran a temperature of 104. She's getting better now. It was just a cold; Jan Clayton has gone to New York to discuss the top female role in "Circusell," the musical version of "Liliom" for the Theater Guild; Raoul Walsh is in New York to take a look at some plays; Colette Lyon has just received word that her brother was wounded in action and is now in a French hospital; Fred Samuels, editor of Photoplay Magazine, arrived today. He will be joined next week by Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Elder and Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Rheinroth, owners of the magazine, and many things are planned for them; Sir Alec Korda, who went directly from the hospital to Palm Springs, leaves any day now for Europe; the Lucius Boomer is due here the 22nd. They want to have a look at "Weekend at the Waldorf." That's all today.

By George Dixon

be nice and roomy. After all, he has space that once was enough to house 24 girls.

The only additional item I have on the subject is that the WAVES, remaining on Eighth Dec., have coined this slogan:

"Ship on the old bathrobe, Dearie. You might run into Capt. Underwood!"

ONCE UPON a time when Secretary of the Interior Ickes fell out of bed and was confined to his home for a few days I did something nice for him. I published his private home telephone number so people could call and relieve his loneliness.

I was never adequately thanked by Mr. Ickes but it has not discouraged me from doing good deeds. Today, I am going to do something equally nice for Undersecretary Abe Fortas, the in-the-Navy-and-out fellow who is really running the Interior Department these days.

Mr. Fortas has checked into the Statler Hotel. Just go to room W-866 and knock!

tion as to their undress behavior in future.

They were told, in no uncertain terms, to make sure they were adequately clad before stepping into the corridors. No more running around like Gunga Din.

They were informed they had to be circumspect because—they might bump into Capt. Herbert Underwood!

IT SEEMS Capt. Underwood, former commanding officer of the WAVE Midshipmen's School at Smith College, Northampton, was assigned to Washington with the Potomac River Naval Command, which takes in all the territory hereabouts.

Well—like a good many others before him, not excluding Congressmen, he discovered we had a housing shortage. In other words, he couldn't find a place to live.

So, finally—in desperation—he had to move in with the WAVES!

I DO NOT KNOW, of course, how Capt. Underwood feels about his new abode, but it must

Boston After Dark

IN 1940 (the spring of) the great Tallulah was visiting Boston, as she is again . . . Miss Bankhead is here this time as the star of a new play, "Foolish Notion" . . . Three of La Bankhead's foibles on her previous visit remain as vivid recollections of this department.

TALLADAH was all-out for Finland then . . . And she wasn't going to take a drink until the Russian Bear was sent his way, nursing his wounds . . . Tallulah made a crusade of her love for little Finland, and worked hard at making converts . . . One night she actually cried over Finland's travail . . . Miss Bankhead had a monkey and a midjet in her entourage that time.

THE MONKEY turned out to be a savage little beast, with an unpleasant custom of leaping on a guest's shoulder, and encircling the person's face with his arms so that his jaws came close to the eyes . . . The midjet was a nice little chap and Tallulah was so impressed that he was a great artist, the Coconut Grove looked him as star for the weeks his famous sponsors was playing Boston Miss Bankhead didn't miss a night at the Grove while she was in town . . . Neither the midjet nor monkey is in her entourage this time.

FRED ALLEN has gained eleven pounds in the time he has been resting from the ordeal of creating a once-a-week radio show . . . The Allen net income will not show too much of a decrease either . . . Fred was in the 95 per cent bracket; i. e., he gave to Uncle Sam's revenues all of his wages save the 5 per cent the law allowed him to retain . . . The great showmanship of the former Boston boy has prevailed in his absence from his regular Sunday night spot.

FOR INSTANCE, with a return to the airwaves as a "regular" impending, Fred has been appearing as "guest-star" on other programs . . . Sunday night, he appeared on Benny's program with his wife, Portland Hoffa. (They were great!) The applause which greeted them both must have convinced Mr. Allen that his welcome, when he returns in a few months to be "either," will establish his rating at its old-time high.

CAPT. JACK THERBERT of the Marines leaves for active duty after five weeks' leave at his New Bedford home . . . Dick Maloney, the light heavyweight member of the South Boston battling Maloneys, is hospitalized in Italy with wounds again, and for the third time in a year . . . His brother (and former heavyweight contender) Jimmy, is on the West Coast . . . Mrs. Hope Stevens, wife of Lt. Harry Stevens, USNR, (of the catering family of Stevenses), landed in Boston for a brief visit with her sister, Mrs. Frank McCarthy of Medfield, and she was one of the two beautiful blondes snared by Joe Burke, the Boston radio distributor with the Music Box . . . The other blonde was Miss Hope McCarthy, Mrs. Stevens' niece.

REMEMBER Hedy Lamar and the foreign accent which sounded so incongruous among the Boston broads (the Hollywood version of "Hi M. Bulham, Esq.") . . . Well, reports have filtered out of the Beverly Hills salons for some months now purporting to show the lustrious Hedy as the wide-eyed pupil of her husband, John Leder . . . "Experiment Perilous," the movie made from Margaret Carpenter's first novel, proves that the tutor-pupil status of the Leders is the real thing . . . Hedy's accent now is definitely British . . . Except with her "w's" . . . These are still haunted by Hedy's native tongue and its inability to make an English "w" sound like anything but a "u" . . . However, Hedy hasn't changed in appearance, which is something.

The Hero's Badge

THE WAR DEPARTMENT has announced that there will be no change in the design of the lapel button issued to honorably discharged veterans of this war.

Previously, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of the President, and several members of Congress had publicly criticized the emblem as being indistinct and difficult to recognize.

But the War Department, with thousands of buttons on hand for immediate distribution, resolved to reject the adverse comment in favor of quickly getting the badge of distinction to the men who have earned the right to wear it.

AND THEY SHOULD WEAR IT, PROUDLY AND WHEREVER THEY GO.

Moreover, all Americans should learn to recognize and honor it.

The lapel button is a lifelong military uniform. It replaces the khaki, green and blue of active service. It proclaims that its owner has faithfully discharged the weightiest duty of citizenship in time of national peril.

It signifies the whole mighty World War II and the noble aspirations of a singularly idealistic country striving for decency in a world made dark by Totalitarianism.

It betokens memories of separation from family and friends of perilous experiences on land, at sea and in the air, and of heartaches and heartbreaks that never may be revealed.

The honorable discharge insignia is a simple thing, just a gold plated elastic circle enclosing an eagle with outstretched wings.

BUT WHAT IT TYPIFIES IS AS BIG AND AS INSPIRING AS THE HEART OF THE MAN WHO DID NOT HESITATE TO RISK EVERYTHING, INCLUDING HIS LIFE, FOR A BETTER, HAPPIER WORLD.

Honor the discharge button. Salute it reverently and gratefully. For it connotes a hero.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Until recently the young and lissome WAVES who are housed at WAVE Quarters "A," 18th and G sts., N. W., were quite uninhibited about how they ran around the place, particularly in the evenings.

They would roam the upper corridors clad in far less than regulation uniform. They'd dash from the showers to answer the telephone with the same sang froid, often not bothering to grab a towel.

Naturally, I did not get this at first hand, but it is not open to question because any number of the young ladies residing there assured me of its truth.

Anyway, it was perfectly all right for the WAVES to prance and caper in this manner because there was not a male in the entire establishment.

But—suddenly— all this changed.

A man moved in!

WAVE QUARTERS "A" is eagerly sought as a living barracks by the young ladies because it is handy to the downtown area, and also to the Navy Building at 18th st. and Constitution ave., which is only four blocks away. When a WAVE manages to get bunked at quarters "A" she hates to leave, because the other barracks are way out in the outskirts.

Consequently there was great indignation a couple of months ago when 24 WAVES were given peremptory orders to vacate their quarters on the eighth floor, or "Eighth Deck" as it is known, just to be confusing and nautical.

Incidentally, this "Eighth Deck" business reminds me of the scene in the great musical "Of Thee I Sing" in which the sailors call upon the Secretary of the Navy to complain:

"We want you to stop those bells. We want to know what time it is—just like anybody else!"

ANYWAY, the 24 WAVES, protesting as loudly as they dared, were moved out. And those who remained on Eighth Deck were given stern admoni-

My Day

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK, Thursday—Yesterday was a day of pure relaxation. I lunched with some old friends and enjoyed it very much. I spent an hour with our old friend, Maj. Henry S. Hooker, who is gradually going through his period of convalescence at home. In the evening Mrs. Morgenthau, who had spent the day trying to get things for her new apartment in Washington, Miss Thompson, who had been busy going through mail which she hoped some day I would work on, and I went to the play. This was a second evening of pure joy—a salute to American folk and popular music called: "Sing Out, Sweet Land!"

Alfred Drake, Burl Ives and the whole cast, in fact, are very good, and the music takes an old-timer like myself back through the years. We three are all old enough to enjoy every minute of it, and we are still young enough to like the modern things as well; so the whole evening was a grand success.

Tonight I have a speech to make for the Knights of Pythias, and the weather is anything but propitious. At the moment it is snowing hard, but I have a feeling that I shall enjoy being out in the snow this afternoon.

WE HAVE BEEN seeing so much in the papers lately of our need for nurses, and sometimes I imagine the nurses have thought we sounded rather critical of them. A few days ago I received a letter from a mother whose daughter is a second lieutenant in the Army Nurse Corps and who has spent her third Christmas in some cold camp in Europe. At home she made $50 a week and her food. But her brother went into the Army, and so in '42 she went in, too, accepting the munificent salary of $30 a month. That has gone up a bit, but she has worked for it! She started in England, went to Africa and Sicily, and since last October has been in France.

"Their unit always arrives first, when they must live in ice-cold tents or barracks, wash out of their helmets and wade through the mud," writes her mother. "Last January she nearly died of pneumonia. This time, when reaching France, she was again in the hospital with a severe cold."

She was offered a leave to come home, but once in France she hoped to see her brother and so refused.

Her mother has painted a picture of a very fine young woman, a widow, 38 years old, and I think that some day these women who look like angels to the wounded men will get not only the praise which is their due, but recognition, promotion and decorations in addition to esteem from their fellow citizens at home.

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE
NEWEST WAY to say three old, old words is, of course, via perfume. For, love makes poet of the mutest swain! Ever since the Middle Ages when ladies held "courts of love" around Feb. 14 . . . and infatuated swains flocked to pay tribute . . . men have been palpitating "I love you" in a thousand poetic ways through lacy hearts and flowers and ribboned valentines to the lady adored.

Through the ages there have been no defter words in the cause of love than those whispered by the perfumes of one creator . . . prince and poet of great perfumers. Within the golden liquid of his famous fragrances . . . he imprisons forever the fascinating moods of ladies in love.

One is expressive of the gentle tenderness of a great lady . . . in another, elusive mystery of a woman's charm . . . in still another, the vibrant, tremulous song in the heart of a woman deeply in love . . . and lastly, the wayward mood of the eternal coquette. So handy for the senses . . . so swift to capture the heart . . . So deft in saying "I love you" . . . little wonder, then, that these perfumes are the favorites of modern swains to express the poetry of the heart.

Special for Valentine 1943 . . . this day of days set apart for true love . . . he has created a two-fold way for a man to whisper these old, old words of endearment. Nestling in a gleaming translucent box are two little bottles of perfume . . . held sweetly captive by a valentine web of ribbons and hearts and net.

One bottle . . . holding the golden drops of exotic stimulation . . . whispers to the beloved: "I adore you because in you lies the eternal coquette" . . . And the other bottle seems to say: "I love you tenderly because in you lies all the gentle softness of eternal woman."

For the two moods of femininity . . . this double valentine . . . paying double tribute to the beloved . . . is a fitting and ever-so-right remembrance to keep hearts young and gay.

For the names of these perfumes or the special double valentine box, phone the Beauty Dept., Liberty 4000, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Peanut Recipes That Help Ration-Pressed Tables

By MARTHA LEE

RATIONING may have cut down on your meat, butter and sugar supplies, but don't despair. Peanut butter, one of the items on the point program will carry you over many a tight spot. Peanuts are high in fats, protein and carbohydrates and make an ideal meat stretcher. As a matter of fact, they play an integral part in any meal since they are a basic food crammed full of valuable health-giving qualities, filling the body's energy needs which in turn increase body-heat.

They're inexpensive, too, plentiful and versatile, and they can be used in any part of the meal from soup to dessert.

HASTY CASSEROLE

1 cup chopped corned beef (or chopped leftover roast)
2 cups diced potatoes
1 cup salted peanuts, chopped
1 cup canned peas
1 cup salted celery
2 tbsp. chopped pimiento
1 tsp. salt, if desired
1/2 tsp. pepper
2 tbsp. butter, margarine or drippings
Melt fat. Place all ingredients in pan. Cover. When steaming thoroughly, reduce heat to simmering point and cook 45 minutes. Serve with hard rolls and chopped vegetable salad.

BAKED STUFFED HAMBURG

1 1/2 lbs. ground steak
4 tbsp. parsley 2 tsp. salt
4 tbsp. minced onion
4 tbsp. bacon, ham or other fat
1/2 cup water
Mix ground steak, onion, finely chopped parsley, fat and water. Place half of mixture in a shallow greased pan. Add the stuffing. Arrange other half of meat mixture over the stuffing. Bake in a preheated 350 deg. F. oven for 1 1/4 hours.

PEANUT STUFFING

1 1/2 cup stock (beef or chicken)
1 1/2 cups fresh bread crumbs
3/4 cup salted peanuts, ground
2 tsp. shortening
1 tsp. salt, if desired
1 tsp. onion juice
Mix all ingredients
PEANUT BUTTER APPLE PUDDING

6 apples
1/4 cup water
1-3 cup flour
3 tbsp. shortening
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup peanut butter
1 tsp. spices (optional)
Slice apples. Arrange in a buttered baking dish. Add the water. Combine other ingredients. Blend until a crumbly mass. Spread over the apples. Cook in 375 deg. F. oven for 45 to 60 minutes. Serve with chopped salted peanuts and a pitcher of sour cream.

OLD FASHIONED SYRUP. PEANUT COOKIES

1/2 cup shortening 1 cup syrup
2 tbsp. warm water 1 egg
3 cups flour
1 cup raisins (optional)
1 cup salted peanuts
1/2 tsp. soda 1/2 tsp. cinnamon
2 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. allspice 1/2 tsp. cloves
1 tsp. salt, if desired
Mix shortening, syrup and water. Add beaten egg. Dredge raisins and peanuts with 1-4 cup flour. Sift dry ingredients together. Combine mixtures. Add dredged peanuts and raisins. Let stand 10 minutes. Drop on well greased cookie sheet. Bake in a 375 deg. to 400 deg. oven 10 to 15 minutes.

QUEEN OF HEARTS is a high trumpy card even in the game of love . . . and on Feb. 14 . . . queens will hold complete sway over ardent and romantic swains. For a new way to say those three, old, old words . . . "I love you" . . . perfume is the fitting tribute . . . especially the kind described today. Warner Star Joan Leslie would rate high in any hand.

Spring Styles Have Wings

By BETTINA BEDWELL

WINGS for the ladies are part of the spring style plan of some of the famous designers. They have to watch their step in putting wings on our dresses, of course, because the restrictions of L-85 don't allow them much leeway. But they manage. Quite a lot of the prettiest dresses have winglike effects at the shoulders, which gives them quite a heavenly aspect.

Madame Fita, one of our good dress designers, likes to put wings on her simple black dresses, and how she does it is shown in her model which is sketched. The tucked ruffles that make the wings are set on at the back of the sleeves, as you can see. This is a black crepe dress with a tucked neckline, and a softly flared skirt.

A cluster of wood violets set at the waistline makes a dash of color, and white gloves and hat give lightness to the effect.

Veterans' Friend

By JAMES F. McENANEY

Q—Does a cadet nurse rate a star in a service flag? I. W., Nashua.

A—No, not until such time as she enters service as an Army or Navy nurse.

Q—My son has been killed in action in France, June 6. Where can I write for his personal belongings? C. P., Manchester.

A—Write to Personal Effects Bureau, Quartermaster Depot, Kansas City, Mo.

Q—If a dependent mother receives a $15 pension from a son killed in action, can another son now entering the service file for family allowance? B. M., Concord.

A—Yes, if the mother is dependent upon the son now entering service for substantial or chief support, he may file application for family allowance on her behalf.

Q—Where are war bonds issued for the men overseas? H. C., Boston.

A—If the man has been buying bonds by allotment of pay they are issued by Army War Bond Office, 306 West Adams st., Chicago, Ill.

Q—Will the government guarantee payment of commercial insurance premiums for a soldier? M. K., Allston.

A—The United States will guarantee the payment of premiums while the insured is on active duty with military or naval forces, providing application is filed to bring the policy under the Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief Act. The face value of the policy (or policies) may not exceed $10,000.

Q—My husband was killed in action. I have one child. What pension will I receive? M. A., Brookline.

A—If death occurred in line of duty you will receive $30 per month plus $12 for the child.

Q—I had a new baby in October but didn't get a copy of the birth record until November and I filed right away for family allowance. Will I get it for the month of October? J. P., Roslindale.

A—Yes, when an application is already in effect for wife of the soldier and then filed for the child, it is effective the month of birth even though filed at a later date.

Q—What amount of allotment does a divorced wife of a soldier, with one child, receive? C. C., Jamaica Plain.

A—If the divorce decree specifically awards alimony, support or maintenance for the divorced wife she receives the amount awarded by the court, up to $12; if no support is awarded by court she receives nothing. The child receives $10 if payment is made for the wife, or $12 if no payment is made for the wife.

Good news for three families of Massachusetts members of the 26th Division in Luxembourg was announced in the Jan. 26 Grapevine, the YD's front-line newspaper.

75 Benjamin Swift, 328th Inf., winner of the Silver Star for devotion to duty as a medical aid, though twice wounded, is on his way to Aldenville, on a special 30-day furlough. Coming, too, are T-Sgt. Francis Georgia, of Ludlow, four times wounded and holder of the Bronze and Silver Star, and S-Sgt. Robert C. Wiltshire, of North Weymouth, five years in the Army.

John Daly, S2c, of 227 L St., South Boston, has completed recruit training at Sampson.

Capt. Karl S. Herendeen, Jr., 91 Newtonville ave., Newton, has been assigned to Field Artillery school faculty, Ft. Sill, Okla.

Radio operator of a Fifth Air Force troop carrier plane, S-Sgt.

Michael Ardita of Bath, Me., has been awarded the Air Medal.

Lt. Robert H. Brown, son of Mrs. Florence P. Brown, 32 East Springfield st., Boston, has been awarded an Oak Leaf cluster in lieu of a second Distinguished Flying Cross. A Mustang fighter-pilot in Italy, Lt. Brown shot down a German FW-190 over Czechoslovakia in a whirlwind cloud battle protecting a flight of B-24's attacked by 40 enemy planes. Lt. Brown got his first Flying Cross for knocking off three Messerschmitts. He now has a score of seven, with 13 more destroyed on the ground.

Pvt. Paul H. Melver, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Melver, 60 Holbrook rd., Wollaston, is now stationed at a bomber base in Corsica as a chemical warfare serviceman. He has been overseas two years.

T-5 Angelo M. Lupulato, 89 Minden st., Jamaica Plain, member of an aviation engineer battalion in Italy, is serving his 30th month overseas.

Willard H. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Smith, 31 Edgeworth rd., North Quincy, has been promoted to 1st Lt. with a B-24 Liberator group based in Italy.

For his determination in face of probable death in a flaming plane, the Distinguished Flying Cross has been awarded to Lt. Ralph D. Eames, 14 Beacon st., Hyde Park.

Lt. Eames was at the controls of a C-47 transport loaded with troops over Holland last September when flak riddled his gas tank. He kept going, dropped his human load in the right spot and abandoned his plane only when flames raced into his cabin. Lt. Eames won the Air Medal during airborne operations over Cherbourg peninsula.

U. S. Has Supply Plan for France

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP).—The United States handed French plenipotentiaries tonight a proposal for an overall supply program unofficially estimated at about $2,500,000,000.

The proposal, submitted to Jean Monnet, top economic envoy for the French Provisional Government, includes lend-lease and reciprocal-aid agreements.

In a statement issued by the State Department no mention was made of how much of the total supply program would be based on lend-lease and reciprocal-aid and how much was to be placed on a cash-and-credits basis.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY—You are a good judge of people's nature; likewise progressive if true to your better traits. Often deal in facts rather than in theories. Once set on a thing can make a go of it. Slow to anger, but can be exasperating and noncommittal at times. Aim to be on time and not falter in efforts. Birthdate: William Henry Harrison, ninth U. S. OPA Saved U. S. $200,000,000

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Price Administrator Chester Bowles said that a 25 per cent reduction in the number of food overcharges has saved housewives about $200,000,000 in the last year.

He reported in a Blue Network broadcast that as a result of the "fight against wartime chiselers and profiteers" about 30,000 violations cases were referred to OPA enforcement officials in 1944.

Many of these investigations Bowles said, resulted in "irreparable damage suits, license suspensions and outright criminal suits."

He said that despite overall progress, "in a few areas there is an alarmingly large number of chiselers." He did not include Boston among sections where violations continue "serious and dangerous."

Manpower

Soo Ong, Chinese proprietor of a grocery store in Shawmut ave., was today regretting the advice given him by Chairman Miss Mary Driscoll of the Boston Licensing Board, that he close his shop Sundays and take a job as a waiter to help relieve the manpower shortage. The advice was given after the board had refused Soo's petition for a Sunday victualer's license.

Maine Gunner Keeps Sky Eye

WITH U. S. 26TH INFANTRY DIVISION, Feb. 9 (AP)—Men of the 380th Anti-Aircraft Battalion attached to the Yankee Division had been firing at ground targets exclusively for a long period when a pack of 20 German planes swung over them recently, but the ground firing hadn't ruined their sky eyes, they were credited with 13 destroyed planes.

Ferdinand Domingue, of Lewiston, Me., regularly was assigned to driving, but he was in the turret of a quadruple 50-caliber mount when the first plane swooped low and he played his "Chicago Piano" into it until it burst into flames and fell.

Gregory Peck Magnificent In 'Kingdom' Hit at Met

By MARY X. SULLIVAN

Twentieth Century-Fox cannot be too highly commended for the splendid screen dramatization of A. J. Cronin's best seller, "The Keys of the Kingdom," which opened yesterday at the Metropolitan, or too warmly congratulated on the casting of Gregory Peck as Fr. Francis Chisholm.

The simple story of a missionary priest would not seem to be ideal film material. Yet, although the picture is longer than most, it is compelling in its interest.

It is heartening in these days of skepticism and destruction to see a motion picture which glorifies the things of the spirit, and does it with superb good taste and reverence. Peck does a magnificent job as the gangling curate who spent a lifetime ministering in humility to the poor of China, while the splendid supporting cast keeps the picture in exactly the right key, without a false or theatrical note anywhere.

Cronin's book was not an easy one to reproduce on the screen; the differences in clergymen, their human failings as well as their selflessness, are a touchy subject. It does not seem possible, nevertheless, that any of the clergy or the laity could find reason for objection.

Roddy McDowall portrays Francis Chisholm as a child; Thomas Mitchell is Willie Tulloch, the doctor who is Fr. Chisholm's lifelong friend and who, despite the mission, although clinging to his agnosticism to the end, Rosa Strander is Mother Maria-Veronica, whose only sin is that of pride of race. Edmund Gwynn, Vincent Price and Suzy Cedric Hardwicke portray the three gentlemen of the cloth who were the missionary's superiors. James Gleason and Anna Revere are the Methodist missionaries who are welcomed by the priest despite their differences in creed.

The picture is not without its exciting sequences; the battle scenes in which the gentle father helps to capture a gun position, the earlier scene in which a boy he sees his parents perished, the old man's farewell to China and the people he loves, have great emotional intensity. These are, however, incidental to the spirit which pervades the picture.

The M-P-I Can't Forget: Col. Krapf Comes Home

By AUSTEN LAKE

THE TELEPHONE JANGLED AND a nasal voice asked, "Remember me?" Did I remember Lt. Col. George W. Krapf, the former State Senator from member him! Sweet essence of arsenic, he is embroiled on my brain! Could I forget the colonial of MP's in England who gave me the roaring horrors, permanent bowlegs and paralysis of the rump?

So the voice says, "I'm home again, dad burn it!" Then he lets off a string of verbal firecrackers, "&@%$!." He wants reassignment to overseas combat, "&$%," and he'll get it if he has to fry some "&$%," Army general's liver and eat it personal!

My mercifully short acquaintance with the colonel goes back to Britain just one year ago. I was stranded near the old cathedral town of Salisbury and wanted to reach the 5th U. S. Base hospital, 20 miles away. The mail truck was gone! How to get over the long, torturous miles?

A mischievous fate knew the answer! There was a grizzled lieutenant-colonel of MP's—the commanding officer of the U. S. gendarmerie of the area. And he generously offered a lift on his motorcycle, which this dim-witted scriver accepted on the bland assumption that it had a side car—which it didn't! All that it had was a kind of tin can shaped like an old lady's bustle and flanked by a pair of leather dispatch bags.

"Do I ride on that thing?" I asked. "Oh sure," said the colonel. "It'll bounce off your fat." It wasn't reassuring! Neither was the colonel's frank admission that he hadn't been riding this god-damned contraption very long. Nor even still more were his abortive attempts to start the motor, which he finally did after repeated flying tackles on the foot lever. Finally the two-wheeled bronze gave a furious snort and we were off! Good goose flesh, NOW we were off!

The Colonel Was Not Kidding
LET ME SAY THAT UNDOUBTEDLY the colonel was a good army cop and a folksy guy. But he didn't know a motorcycle from a rodeo calf. So now he wobbled headway in a series of dizzy careens, while goosing himself upright with alternate feet. And suddenly he turned on the juice—not gradually, y'understand, but like jabbing a syringe full of horse-hop into a steed's flank. The action was like a bat out of a bonfire—woosh!

Blurred objects which resembled keels and trucks blew by on the opposite left hand side of the road, while the colonel made nonchalant conversation over his shoulder, waving his right hand for emphasis. "Never did get the hang of drivin' on the 'wrong' side of the road," he said. Neither, seemingly, did he get the hang of feeding the cycle's hand throttle, which he kept screwing around and imparting gusty leaps that darn near unhocked this emissary's backbone. At first I suspected that the good colonel was just clowning for the sake of a good, belly-busting laugh. So I from a faint grin on my muss, which was reflected back in the side mirror as a sardonic smirk, and clung on by the sheer tensile strength of my toenails. Not until we bucked the traffic in Salisbury, like two men on a circus steer, did I suddenly realize that friend colonel was NOT kidding. Goshamighty, how he was not kidding!

When we approached the artery center the colonel didn't whoa down by applying his brakes. He just clamped his boot soles against the ground and stepped by pure friction. Which caused the motor to quit with a sudden "pfft." So, while he hopped up and down on the starter again, your chronicler rolled off and massaged the permanent waves in his knees. Which was a lucky thing, by the sheer grace of St. Christopher. Because the colonel had his motor slightly in gear!

So, presently, when he wrestled the wild mustang under control again we were off in another spasm of spinal convulsions, in which each joint induced a collision of the tin seat with your author's pants like the kick of a cow. But the colonel blissfully continued his chat on New England politics, paraphrasing his remarks with neck-busting bursts of the throttle.

I Was His Experimental Guinea Pig!
IT WAS UP A LONG, STEEP HILL and we climbed by sheer muscular force, hitting all the cobblestones and turning the writer's fundamentals to raw hamburger—something which the soldiery thereabouts craved very hungrily, but could not get! At a casual estimate, I judge I had at least 10 pounds of hamburger on my person, though a bit on the green and purple side!

By this time I was past sensation! Only a condition of vocal paralysis prevented me from asking the colonel to stop and let me park my carcass in the grass. I couldn't utter a gurg! But the colonel's larynx was as limber as ever. "I'm apply for combat service," he chirped. Combat, sezee! Combat would have been a 10-minute paradise compared with that hell-born Bucephalus.

At long last, a couple of concentrated centuries, our tandem approached the hilltop hospital reservation and the colonel observed briefly, "Gosh! I think we'll make it!" and ground himself to a gradual halt by dragging his hobnail boots. Yeh! We made it—with the writer's legs bent in parenthetical arcs like this (), feeling in his throat like he'd swallowed a sheepskin hat, and eyes like twin hardboiled eggs. Yeh, WE made it—half of us mute and paralyzed!

"Do you know?" confided the colonel, with the look of a cat that has just swallowed the family cary. "You're my first passenger! Now I know I can do it!" And he, so I from a faint grin on my muss, which was reflected back in the side mirror as a sardonic smirk, and clung on by the sheer tensile strength of my toenails. Not until we bucked the traffic in Salisbury, like two men on a circus steer, did I suddenly realize that friend colonel was NOT kidding. Goshamighty, how he was not kidding!

Do you think I'll ever forget Lt. Col. George W. Krapf of 25 Hollister st., Pittsfield? He got me muh purple heart!

Reaches 500 Pt. Mark On His 38th Birthday

By BILL GRIMES

Incredible as it may seem, Aubrey Victor "Dit" Clapper, playing coach of the Bruins, who today is celebrating his 38th birthday, has contributed exactly 500 points to the Boston hockey cause, since Manager Art Ross drafted him from the old Boston Tigers of the Can-Am League, back in 1927.

Clapper has made 223 goals and 229 assists in regularly scheduled N. H. L. games for a total of 462 points. And, in Stanley Cup play down series, he has compiled a record of 15 goals and 23 assists for 38 points, giving him an even 500.

But, we are sorry to inform the members of the "Dit" Clapper "Marching and Chowder Club" that their idol has spent seven hours and twelve minutes in N. H. L. penalty boxes.

Clapper broke into pro hockey with the original Boston Tigers. He was a shy, gangling 19 year old kid when the late Eddie Powers brought him from Toronto.

However, he dismissed his shyness and lost the gangly when he donned skates. He was one of the "bad men" of the Can-Am League that winter, serving no less than 57 minutes for rule infractions.

Here's an angle on Clapper's hockey career known to very few of even the closest followers of the game.

When the late George V. Brown decided to sponsor the Tigers he didn't have a coach or a player. So, he contacted Eddie Powers, who had coached the Westminsters. Eddie arrived in town with Clapper, Ag Smith, Ponzi Santant and George Rodding, who had been with the Bruins two years previous. But, the Tigers were unable to dig up a goal minder. Finally, a deal was made with Les Canadiens for the loan of Herb Rheume, with the understanding that the French club would have first call on any Tiger at the end of the season.

Well, Clapper was the most outstanding player on that club. He was young, big, rugged and usually as well as an unusually natural skater. So, Clapper was the player that Leo Dandurand and Cecil Hart eventually selected, but didn't get.

With Eddie Shore, Sprague Cleghorn and Lionel Hitchman on his pay roll, Manager Ross was well fortified with defensemen. And, but for the fact that he gained the impression that Canadians had given his Bruins the "business" in their final game with Pittsburgh which cost him a playoff berth the previous spring, Art Ross might have passed up Clapper. Instead, however, he drafted Clapper and it was a month before Dandurand could think of a word in English.

Clapper is rounding out his 18th season as a Bruin. Despite the fact that today he is starting his 38th trip around life's circle, "Dit" is still a grand hockey player. And, even more important, he has won the respect and admiration of all the N. H. L. magistrates, coaches, players, trainers, innkeepers and fans by being a regular fellow both off and on the ice.

They broke the mold after creating Aubrey Victor Clapper.

Three Favorites to Slug It Out In Track

By MIKE GILLOOLY

There'll be three distinct favorites at the 28th annual State track and field meet tomorrow afternoon at the Boston Garden where 313 athletes from 30 high schools will be competing for the twin class crowns—11 schools going after Class A honors and 19 in the running for the Class B championship.

Newton, a proverbial top-notch outfit, will probably be forced all the way to make a clean sweep of the major indoor titles while in individual tests, Jim Gallo of Medford and Bob Ray of Dedham look for certainties in their field event specialties.

Newton had to scrape the bottom of the barrel to dig up an all-important half point to win the Northeastern Meet but with the competition split, as it is in this carnival of legs, the Orange and Black hopes will be much better. There'll be no 'outlaw' schools to cut into the scoring—and Lowell was a distinct threat to Newton's eight points in the dash—and there'll be no doubling up, the rules of the meet permitting a boy to compete in but one running and one field event.

Hockey, although shuttled out of its usual stamping grounds at the Garden, will be keeping up its torrid pace. The Greater Boston league will have the after-

The Green Race Special edition is being temporarily suspended but the complete news of racing will be contained in the regular edition of the Boston American starting Monday. Watch for it—it will carry a green streak.

Better Competition Is Certain in B.A.A. Games

By JACK CONWAY

TOM KANALY, general manager of the Garden, told me that one of the features of the B. A. A. games at the Garden tomorrow night will be the closeness of the competition.

"With so many stars in service," said Tom, "there will not be any walkaways. The greats of other years have changed their track uniforms for different uniforms, khaki or blue, and none of the men who will compete will outclass their opponents."

The Millrose games in New York revealed that the old men of athletics can do very well under present conditions. In track sports we call a man old when he is around 30 years of age.

"Jim Rafferty of the New York A. C., who has been out of Foxham seven years, looks like the outstanding miler of the year. Rafferty was second to Gil Dodd last year when the latter did a 4.11 mile. He defeated Ollie Hunter, formerly of Notre Dame, in the two mile event at the Millrose games."

"At the B. A. A. games Rafferty will receive severe competition from Eas. Tommy Quinn of the U. S. Naval Training Station at Bainbridge, Md., and from Rudy Simms of New York. Quinn and Simms both hold titles."

"Jim Herbert, 23-year-old New York postal clerk, who used to represent New York University, will also compete."

"I think the 600 yards event at the B. A. A. games will be a thriller. In addition to Herbert, the list of entries includes the names of Elmore Harris, formerly of Alabama, who has a win to his credit over Herb McKinley; Joe Dibeler of the New York A. C., and Morris Callender of New York University, who was second to Herbert in the Millrose games."

KANALY declared that track sports, like boxing, today has numerous colored stars.

"There will be some great colored sprinters in the B. A. A. games," declared Tom. "Barney Ewell, William Mathis, Washing-

Jack Sharkey Buys New Newton Home

Jack Sharkey, former heavyweight champion of the world, has purchased a new home in the swanky Oak Hill section of Newton. It is a nine-room house, which has three baths and a two-car garage.

The Sharkeys plan to move into their new home early next month. Mrs. Sharkey says that her oldest daughter, Dorothy, is training to be a nurse, while Jack, Jr., is in a military school in Connecticut intent upon a naval career. Millyn is attending school in Newton.

Sharkey sold his former home in Stone ave., Newton, to James Walsh, prominent Boston business man, and leading Catholic leader. Both real estate transactions were completed this week, and deeds have been placed on record in Middlesex County.

ton schoolboy, Herbert Thompson of the Coast Guard, Eddie Cornwell of New York and Eulace Peacock will be among those who will compete. Peacock took part in a B. A. A. meet ten years ago and still possesses blazing speed.

"The 1000 yards run has always been an interesting affair, and it should produce plenty of excitement tomorrow night with Sergeant Howard Bork of New York, Joe Hall, formerly of Columbia, Ed Carney of Jersey City and Stanton Callender among the starters."

"Eddie Duggor, formerly of Tufts and now located at Dayton, O., will star in the hurdles, as will Flight Lt. Kinkle of Toronto and Wolozin of Tufts."

"The Billings two-mile event will be a handicap affair with Forest Elaw of the Navy, A. A. U. senior steeplechase champion, and Duncan Blanchard on scratch. Henry Walsh of New York will have a 10 yard handicap, while Clayton Farrar of the Coast Guard will have a 30 yard handicap. By having this race a handicap affair, the competition will be better than it otherwise would be."

Classy Field Events

KANALY SAID the caliber of the field events would be excellent.

"In the high jump," said Tom, "Dave L. Britton of Dayton, who jumps six feet seven inches with the greatest of ease, will compete against Ervin Mondschien of the Army, Jack Moody of New Jersey and George Heddy of Colgate."

"The pole vault will feature Cpl Milton Tudway, John Schmidt of Ohio State and P. G. Harwood. There will be a potato race and an obstacle race for servicemen, 12 relay races with 17 college teams competing. The George V. Brown trophy will be given to the team making the fastest time."

"Andover will battle Exeter in a relay event for foresters. Aces will clash with LaSalle, the Catholic high schools will have their competition, while the Boston high schools will have an interesting feature."

Interest in the B. A. A. games is running high, and it is expected there will be a large crowd on hand to witness the event.

Dempsey's Counsel Shaped Eagan's Life

(This is the third of a series of brilliant articles by Bob Considine on Lt. Col. Eddie Eagan, former U. S. and Olympic amateur boxing champion, recently appointed chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, most powerful boxing board in the world.)

By BOB CONSIDINE

International News Service Staff Correspondent

Eddie Eagan honed his fists on stubby chins of local toughs around Colorado. The first amateur title he won was the welterweight championship of the Denver Athletic Club. He was a high school boy at the time and only a lecture from his schoolmaster—who held before him the promise of a scholarship to Denver University—kept his nose in his school-books.

As a Denver freshman he had a terrific battle with a Cripple Creek, Col., coal miner named Lunn Myberg and beat the man. Damon Runyon wrote him up on later fights at the Denver A. C., and he found himself believing every word his fair weather friends said about him.

Then Jack Dempsey came to town. That was in 1917 and Dempsey had a broken nose surrounded by an ingrown sneer and a haircut done with the aid of a soup-bowl. He hadn't gained his great fame as yet, but he was being billed around the country as the coming heavyweight champ, and he was—as any old timer will tell you—about the roughest, toughest hombre in the land.

Eagan thought he could lick Dempsey, so he jumped at the opportunity to box three rounds against the Manassa Mauler for the benefit of the Red Cross. The fight was staged at the Old Empire Theater in Denver, with Otto Floto, the old Denver Post sports editor, as referee.

Dempsey was bigger than Eagan, expected him to be, but the kid remained confident even after Floto whispered to them: "Now, boys, a nice fast exhibition, and Jack, remember there are women out there, so don't hit hard."

Eagan was sure because Floto had said nothing about his (Eagan's), punch. "I'll shoot a stiff right across to his chin as soon as the bell rings," the kid decided.

He did. He swung from the heels and hit Jack right on his unshaven jaw. Jack stopped. Eagan clouted him again, and shook him. Dempsey suddenly went into a weave, humming, yell again and believed Eddie was coming on. But Eddie had no illusions by that time. He knew Dempsey was stalling. And he was grateful.

Dempsey took him to his dressing room after the fight, complimented him on his punching powers and showed him how to weave and how to protect his chin by tucking it behind his shielding left shoulder.

"You'd be a good pro," Jack said when they parted. "But Floto tells me you're in college. Stick to it, kid. I wish I had your chance. A pro earns damn little money."

Eagan went back to his books obediently. Dempsey, who said a pro makes little money, went on to earn about $5,000,000 with his fists.

Eagan won the middleweight championship at the inter-Allied games in Paris after World War I. And there he met Gene Tunney, who won the light-heavy title in the same tournament. Gene was unimpressive, physically, in 1919, and not much of a fighter. Eagan urged him to return with him to the States and enter Yale. "You ought to make the football team there," he told the young Marine.

Bob Considine continues his absorbing story of Eddie Eagan exclusively in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

8 Sons in War, 9th Faces Draft

LEHIGHTON, Pa., Feb. 9 (AP) — Mrs. Russell McFarland, whose eight sons are now in the armed services, sought today to have her ninth son deferred from induction.

Mrs. McFarland, whose second husband—10 years her junior—also is eligible for Selective Service, has seven sons overseas and one in this country. The ninth son, Marcus K. Smith, is scheduled to register Saturday on his 18th birthday. There are three younger children.

President Harry B. Saeger of the Lehighton draft board said men are needed so badly to fill the board's next quota that the ninth son is scheduled to go to Wilkes-Barre for induction the first week in March. Friends of Mrs. McFarland urged her to appeal to President Roosevelt to keep the ninth son at home.

Don Meade Wins Mexico City Feature

Don Meade rode Rancho Tarabillas' Push to a seven-length victory over Mrs. R. H. Everitt's Carrigahar in the featured Premio Alamos at Mexico City's Hipodromo De Las Americas yesterday.

The winner ran the five and a half furlongs in 1:05 2-5 and paid $5.40.

Callahan A. C. Has All-Star Show

The Andy Callahan A. C. returns to the firing line next Friday night, Feb. 16, with an all star show of four ten rounders.

Johnny Ryan of Detroit, will crawl through the ropes to battle Tony Petro of Hartford, Ct., who stopped Jackie Capperall here in his appearance.

"Irish" Jimmy Mulligan of Lowell, meets "Tiger" Lou Jones, of Birmingham, Ala.

Big Henry Jones of Philadelphia, who put up a good fight on the last Callahan A. C. show against Elmer Ray, will be back with Louis Long of Los Angeles.

In the windup and feature event Reddy Evans will battle Pordena Smith of Sydney, N. S., Canada, the middleweight champion of the Maritime Provinces. Pordena Smith won 59 out of 60 starts and received a draw in the other contest.

Holy Cross Subs Make Good

Before 8 o'clock last night five men from Holy Cross were rated as substitutes. Before the night was over these five stalwarts were not only rated heroes, but players of the first magnitude. Through their efforts Holy Cross made a magnificent stand against the crack St. Francis team of Brooklyn. The latter team won 52-48, but only after a stiff and determined battle.

The Holy Cross regulars were storm-bound in Framingham and unable to reach the Boston Garden in time to start against St. Francis. The Garden management believes in holding to schedule and ordered some sort of team onto the floor to play Bill O'Connell, assistant director of Holy Cross athletics, sent the five subs out. And what a swell job those kids did!

In the other part of the double feature the Hamline College team with the great Howie Schultz at his very best, scored a 58 to 50 win over Westminster College.

Big Schultz, who plays first base for the Brooklyn Dodgers, registered 19 points for his team. The terrific storm conditions held the crowd down to 2674. The doubleheader was most thrilling. The changing leads throughout kept the crowd tense from start to finish.
